Our child has only just started school. Although initially was a little anxious starting school, she has settled well and now wants to be a "friendly helper", when she is a "big girl". What a wonderful idea to empower children to help and support one another. Well done Ashford Park as a parent I'm truly impressed. Thankyou

School is fab and teachers are fab! Just think the parents need to talk more and have a better relationship to build relationships with the kids outside of school. Year group/classroom forums would be a good idea.

I hope this is useful its difficult to answer the questions around children in school as our experience of how they act around each other is limited (other than what our children tell us)

Please identify children with well being issues quicker this is not just learning difficulties which you are great at but emotional needs are so quickly identified.

Although my daughter has been bullied it was delt with swiftly and she has never felt as if she sisnt want to go to school and has never lost he kindness herself.

Kindness is a value I strongly associate with Ashford Park Primary School and I'm grateful that my children have had such a positive experience there.
